

Kiowa County Junior High Tour Guides

At Kiowa County Junior High, there is a group called Student Tour Guides. It involves seventh and eighth graders that Counselor Kathy Headrick thought would be able to remember the facts and talk about them in front of a group. From my experience as a guide, it is a great program.

I was not comfortable talking in front of people that I don't know until this program. Now I love talking and interacting with all the new people that I meet. I feel like I enjoy it way more than I used to, because I have done it so many times I am a lot more confident with the information.

The kids that are a part of this know so much about the building; all of the "green features", technology, enrollment, and more. There is a lot you have to learn and remember; it is hard work. I feel so appreciative for this building and if I see someone taking it for granted, it hurts.

If you go on a tour just about anywhere, how many have junior high students giving you the tour all alone? Not very many. All of the people that I have given one to think that's so unique. It's also impressive that a kid cares about the building, and can remember all of the facts.

It's a lot of work because you get out of class a lot and you have to make up work; but it's all worth it. I have met some very nice people in my experience and I encourage any students to get involved in the program.
